

Experts appointed

In a move designed to put health and safety firmly at the top of the company's agenda, Seafield Logistics has appointed a firm of health and safety experts. By outsourcing the majority of health and safety operations, Seafield believes that this hugely important aspect of the business will be given an even higher priority. The new approach of appointing external specialists has been taken to support internal procedures and to underpin the processes already in place.

Core to the business and the company's future development plans, health and safety is seen as a main focus by the senior management team. Rather like having a permanent external auditor the health and safety firm will be constantly reviewing and challenging Seafield Logistics to ensure that best practice is adopted thereby keeping health and safety at the top of the company's agenda.
